To whom it my concern,

Slater Builders has worked on new construction projects and building renovation for the Archdiocese of Los Angeles over a period of eight years. These projects ranged in cost from one hundred thousand to over eight million dollars.

Slater Builders continuing relationship with the Archdiocese is testament to their professional workmanship, cost competitiveness, delivery on schedule, response to problems and cost savings suggestions. They have a staff of professional project managers and superintendents and an owner who is personally involved in each project.

I have had a role in each of the projects that they have completed for the Archdiocese and I am currently the owner project supervisor for a six million dollar school extension.

I highly recommend Slater Builders as your builder.

Sincerely,

Br. Hilarion O'Connor
